Restriction/Election

1. Restriction is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 and 372.

This application contains the following inventions or groups of inventions, which are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

In accordance with 37 CFR 1.499, applicant is required, in response to this action, to elect a single invention to which the claims must be restricted.

Group I, claim(s) 1-15, 24, 39 and 62 are drawn to a synthetic gene, vector, cell and method of making polyketide.

Group II, claim(s) 16-21 are drawn to a gene library.

Group III, claim(s) 22-23, 25-26 and 29 are drawn to a cloning vector.

Group IV, claim(s) 27-28 are drawn to a vector.

Group V, claim(s) 30-32 are drawn to a composition.

Group VI, claim(s) 33 is drawn to a vector with a selectable marker.

Group VII, claim(s) 34-37, 40-43 and 65-66 are drawn to a method of joining a series of DNA units using a vector pair.

Group VIII, claim(s) 38 and 67-68 are drawn to a method of joining several DNA units in a sequence.

Group IX, claim(s) 44-45 are drawn to a method of making a synthetic gene.

Art Unit: 1656

Group X, claim(s) 46-48 are drawn to a method for identifying restriction enzyme recognition sites.

Group XI, claim (s) 49-50 are drawn to a method for high throughput synthesis.

Group XII, claim (s) 51-58 are drawn to a method for designing a synthetic gene.

Group XIII, claim(s) 59-60 are drawn to a method for analyzing a nucleotide sequence of a synthon.

Group XIV, claim(s) 61 is drawn to a system for high throughput synthesis of synthetic genes.

Group XV, claim(s) 63-64 are drawn to an open reading frame vector.

2. The inventions listed as Groups I-XV do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, they lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: because under PCT Rule 13.1 applicant is entitled to the first product, method of using and making said product. Further the technical feature of Group I is a synthetic gene corresponding to a naturally occurring gene encoding a polypeptide segment wherein said synthetic gene is less than 90% identical to said naturally occurring gene. This technical feature is not a special technical feature because it does not escape the prior art as Wingfield et al. (Protein Science, vol. 6, pages 1653-1660, 1997) teach DNA encoding residues 27-149 of transmembrane glycoprotein gp41 from SIVmac239 containing two non-naturally occurring mutations: C86A and C92A (see page 1658, column 1). The gene taught by Wingfield et al. is less than 90% identical to the naturally occurring gene because it is missing the N-terminal 26 residues. Applicant has defined a "synthetic gene" on page 17 of the specification as being "a gene comprising a polypeptide segment-coding sequence not found in nature, where the polypeptides segment-encoding sequence encodes a polypeptide or fragment or domain of at least about...50 amino acid residues length". The gene taught by Wingfield et al. encodes a fragment of gp41 (the N-terminus if missing) that is greater than 50 amino acids and contains a sequence that is not found in nature since residues 86 and 92 are mutated in vitro. As Wingfield et al. anticipates Group I, these inventions are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a petition under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(I).

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
